MESSAGE FROM COSAF PRESIDENT DR PHILLIP CHIYANGWA

IN THIS MOST DIFFICULT OF YEARS, we are delighted to be able to provide international football for the region's senior women's sides and the Under-17 girls, who will play tournaments concurrently for the right to be crowned queens of Southern Africa.

COVID-19 has had a dramatic impact on the world of football and it is no different in our region, where the domestic leagues have had to adapt to the 'new normal'.

But we are finding our way, and the fact that we will have four tournaments before the end of 2020, with the addition of the Men's Under-17 and Under-20 competitions, shows that we are navigating through this crisis.

A big word of thanks must go to all those who work so hard in the background to make these tournaments happen, as well as the South African Football Association (SAFA) for sharing their knowledge and expertise on hosting events in the era of COVID-19.

Unfortunately, we will not have fans at the stadiums in host city Nelson Mandela Bay, which is a shame given the tremendous support we have received from locals in the last few years that we have hosted tournaments in the 'Friendly City'.

The stands have always had a great atmosphere, but we cannot compromise the safety of supporters, nor that of our teams, match officials and administrative staff.

That is why we have put in place strict COVID-19 guidelines to keep everybody as shielded from the virus as is possible at events such as this.

We must, of course, extend our gratitude once more to Nelson Mandela Bay for playing host again in such difficult circumstances.

Their commitment to football in the COSAF region is appreciated by all as they prepare to host the COSAF Women's Championship for the third successive year, and will also take on the COSAF Women's Under-17 Championship having helped stage the Under-20 women's competition in 2019.

We are delighted that they will also host the 2020 COSAF Men's Under-17 Championship (November 19-29) and 2020 COSAF Men's Under-20 Championship (December 3-13) that are both zonal qualifiers for their respective continental finals.

The aim, as ever, of the tournaments is to help develop football in our region, not just the players on the pitch, but also coaches, match officials and administrators.

It is by hosting and organising tournaments such as these that we see skills improved in all areas, as there is nothing better than hands-on experience to gain knowledge.

These are challenging times, but we will rise above the hurdles in our path and continue to grow the game of football in the Southern African region.

MESSAGE FROM SAFA PRESIDENT DR DANNY JORDAAN

ONCE AGAIN, our COSAFA Region gather in this beautiful city of Port Elizabeth in the Nelson Mandela Bay for yet another fiesta of women's football.

The women's COSAFA Cup has become one of the most important annual occasions in the regional calendar and has been growing in leaps and bounds.

Last year, we had one of the biggest gatherings in this week-long tournament and most teams managed to identify future stars for their respective teams.

While this year's Women COSAFA Cup tournament comes in the aftermath of the debilitating COVID-19 pandemic, we expect the same competitiveness from those taking part in this tournament.

This is one tournament that has helped our women regional teams grow in stature and managed to hold their own on the continental and global competitions.

I would also want to thank the hosts for welcoming the COSAFA Region to Port Elizabeth for the third year running now.

Women's sport needs various stakeholders to join hands as this is one area that has massive potential, as underscored by FIFA's blueprint and focus on women football.

Both senior women's national teams and their Under-17 counterparts have many fixtures ahead of them – continentally and globally – and I would want to urge all teams to grab this opportunity to get themselves ready for future assignments.

My wish is to see COSAFA dominate women football and we have what it takes to do so on consistent basis.

Once again, I welcome all teams to our shores. Enjoy the wonderful tournament, play and do everything in the spirit of the game. Winning is not always the ultimate; create opportunities and make friends.

I thank you!

MESSAGE FROM NELSON MANDELA BAY MUNICIPALITY INTERIM EXECUTIVE MAYOR, CLLR THSONONO BUYEYE

Nationally and Internationally.

This year's tournament takes place under abnormal circumstances due to COVID-19. Be that as it may we can assure visitors that all the COVID-19 regulations will be adhered to. We have safety measures in place as our Disaster Management Unit continues to be on high alert working with all the relevant stakeholders including the Department of Health.

We are a City that loves people and we are open for business.

IT GIVES ME GREAT PLEASURE to announce that the Nelson Mandela Bay Municipality will be once host the COSAFA Women's Championship this year.

In November our friendly City will be a home to our stars who will be taking part in the tournament. For the past two years, we have been doing a sterling job hosting this tournament.

We are doing this in November again as we have strategically positioned our City as a preferred sport destination

COSAFSA WOMEN'S TOURNAMENT HISTORY

2002

COSAFSA WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP

The inaugural COSAFSA Women's Championship was staged in Zimbabwe from April 19-28, 2002, and was to feature nine teams before Mauritius withdrew. South Africa and hosts Zimbabwe were always going to be the favourites and it was they who met in the final. But before then, both stormed through their pools to make the semis.

Zimbabwe topped Group A as they claimed a record 15-0 victory over Lesotho, to go with wins against Zambia (4-0) and Malawi (6-0). The Zambians managed to fill the runners-up spot.

South Africa were even more emphatic in their pool stage campaign as they claimed victories over Botswana (14-0), a game in which Veronica Phewe scored eight goals, Mozambique (13-0) and Swaziland (4-0). Mozambique picked up the runners-up position in Group B.

Zimbabwe made short work of Mozambique in their semifinal with an 11-1 victory, while South Africa had it much tougher with a 3-1 success against Zambia in the other semi.

That set up a final at the Rufaro Stadium that was won 2-1 by South Africa thanks to goals from Phewe and Portia Modise.

Zambia took the bronze medal when Julia Siame scored the only goal as they beat Mozambique 1-0 in the third-place play-off.

There have been seven previous COSAFSA Women's Championships since the first was played in 2002, each providing excitement and showcasing the quality of the talent in the Southern African region.

2006

COSAFSA WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP

South African retained their title at the second COSAFSA Women's Championship, which this time was played in Zambia.

Again, there were originally nine entrants, but when Mozambique withdrew the field was cut to eight, though it was still played with three groups.

Zambia and Namibia qualified for the semifinals from Group A as they both managed four points. They opened their campaign with a 2-2 draw against one another, before Zambia beat Swaziland 7-0 and Namibia managed a 6-0 win against the Swazis.

In Group B, South Africa won both of their matches as they defeated Lesotho (9-0) and Malawi (3-0) to top the pool. Phewe and Modise were among the goals, as well as Joanne Solomon, who managed a hat-trick in the first game.

With Mozambique out, Group C was reduced to two teams, so Zimbabwe and Angola essentially played over two legs, with the Zimbabweans winning 3-1 and 1-0 to advance as pool winners.

South Africa were too strong in the semifinals with a 4-1 win over Zimbabwe, while Namibia edged Zambia 5-4 on penalties after the teams had played to a 1-1 draw.

Zambia took the bronze medal as they beat Zimbabwe 2-1 in the play-off, while South Africa fell behind to a Rita Williams goal for Namibia in the final, but Modise (two) and Kylie-Ann Louw netted as they roared back to claim gold.

2008

COSAFA WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP

South Africa sent their Under-20 side to the 2008 COSAFA Women's Championship in Angola because of a clash of fixtures for the senior national side, but still managed to come home with the gold medal.

A young Noko Matlou proved the hero for them with a hat-trick in the final, as she netted 12 goals through the entire tournament to underline her huge potential. She is still playing for the team today.

South Africa had been placed in a tough group, but came through relatively unscathed as they beat Botswana (5-0), Zimbabwe (2-1) and Zambia (7-3).

That set up a semifinal with Namibia, where they again were forced to fight hard before goals from Tina Selepe, Lucinda Bowers and Matlou saw them win the day 3-1.

That set up a final against the hosts Angola when Matlou shone again as her hat-trick saw South Africa win their third straight gold and keep their grip on the regional showpiece trophy.

2011

COSAFA WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP

Hosts Zimbabwe became the first side to break South Africa's hold on the COSAFA Women's Championship when they picked up the trophy on home soil in 2011.

The tournament was played at two venues across Harare and included East African guest nation Tanzania.

Zimbabwe breezed through Group A as they claimed three wins from three against Lesotho (4-0), Malawi (8-2) and Mozambique (3-0). They were joined in the semifinals by Malawi, who took the runner-up spot in the pool.

South Africa also had a perfect record in the pool stages as they claimed wins over Zambia (4-1), Botswana (4-0) and Tanzania (1-0), with Tanzania joining them in the knockout stages. Zimbabwe found the going tough in the semifinals though where they were held to a 0-0 draw by Tanzania, but held their nerve to claim the penalty shoot-out 4-2.

South Africa were much more emphatic winners in their semifinal as they defeated Malawi 5-1 with future national team captain Amanda Dlamini grabbing two goals. That set up a final with Zimbabwe and it was the hosts who triumphed as Rufaro Machingura scored the only goal with six minutes remaining to claim gold for her team.

2017

COSAFA WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP

Zimbabwe were the hosts of the tournament again in 2017 and made it all the way to the final, only to come unstuck against South Africa, who regained the trophy against their old foe.

South Africa eased through their first round group with wins over Lesotho (3-0) and Namibia (3-1), but did drop points in their final match, a 1-1 draw with Botswana.

Zimbabwe had to rely on finishing as the best runner-up to advance after they beat Madagascar 4-0, drew 1-1 with pool winners Zambia and were also held to a 3-3 draw by Malawi.

But the hosts breezed through the semifinal stage, easily seeing off East African guest nation Kenya 4-0 thanks to goals from Rutendo Makore, Berita Kabwe, Marjory Nyaumwe and Privilege Mupeti.

The other semifinal was an absolute classic, one of the most thrilling women's football games ever staged on the continent. Barbra Banda, Grace Chanda and Misozi Zulu had put Zambia 3-0 up with 75 minutes on the clock, before South Africa rallied in remarkable style.

When Leandra Smeda headed home Banyana Banyana were given a sniff, and those chances increased when Smeda then added a penalty to make the score 3-2. The comeback was complete six minutes from time when captain Refiloe Jane tapped home at the back post to force the game to penalties.

By now the momentum was with the South Africans and they held their nerve in the shoot-out as Esther Mukwasa missed her spot-kick to see Zambia defeated.

Zambia took the bronze medal with a penalty shoot-out victory over Kenya after a 1-1 draw in the play-off, but the final was again decided by some late heroics from the South Africans as Smeda scored a 90th minute winner to give Banyana a fourth regional title.

Thembi Kgatlana had scored the opener for the South Africans just before halftime, but when tournament top-scorer Rutendo Makore equalised with 17 minutes remaining, it looked as though the final would have to be decided by penalties.

But when Smeda popped up to head home Chantelle Esau's cross at the death, she secured the trophy for her side.

2018

COSAFA WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP

Cameroon and Uganda were two exciting guests invited for the 2019 championship, which was staged in Nelson Mandela Bay for the first time, as South Africa proved too strong again for their rivals

The twelve teams were split into three groups of four sides, with the top team in each pool advancing to the semifinals, along with the best-placed runner-up.

South Africa won all three games in Group A, though they were run close in the first two with victories over Madagascar (2-1) and Botswana (1-0), before a 6-0 success against Malawi.

Zambia also claimed full points in Group B, beating Lesotho (2-0), Cameroon (1-0) and Mozambique (3-0) without conceding a goal. Cameroon were rampant in their other two fixtures, with wins over Mozambique (8-1) and Lesotho (6-0) to claim the best runner-up place.

Uganda edged top spot in Group C ahead of Zimbabwe, the crucial fixture in that pool being their 2-1 victory over the Mighty Warriors that would decide top spot.

A lone goal from Genevieve Ngo Mbeleck saw Cameroon edge Zambia 1-0 in the semifinal, a battle between two sides later headed to the 2019 African Women's Championship in Ghana.

South Africa were 2-0 winners against Uganda in their semi, Motlhalo and Jermaine Seoposenwe the players on target. Uganda edged Zambia 1-0 in the bronze-medal match, while the final turned out to be a thriller.

Refiloe Jane gave South Africa the lead just before halftime, but Cameroon equalised through Ngo Mbeleck. Both sides had chances to win it, before Jane popped up again in injury-time to seal the victory for Banyana Banyana.

2019

COSAFA WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP

A record 12 sides competed in the 2019 version of the competition, with Comoros Islands making their debut in the expanded event that was played in Nelson Mandela Bay.

It would be a difficult debut for Comoros, as they lost their opener 17-0 to South Africa, a record score in the women's championship.

There were 10 different goalscorers on the day, but Refiloe Jane (four) and Amanda Mthandi (three) led the way for the hosts. They made it three wins from three in the pool with victories over Malawi (3-1) and Madagascar (3-0).

Zambia edged Botswana on goal-difference to top Group B, though both teams advanced to the semi-finals with the latter winning their place as the best runner-up.

Zambia humbled Mauritius 15-0, with eight goals for tournament top-scorer Rachael Nachula, before beating Namibia (3-2) and playing to a 0-0 draw with Botswana that ended up suiting both sides.

Zimbabwe grabbed a full haul of points to top Group C, easing past Angola (4-1), Mozambique (4-0) and Eswatini (7-0) in what was a powerful display from the side.

But they came unstuck against South Africa in the semifinals, with the hosts winning 3-1, while Zambia defeated Botswana 4-0 in the other knockout clash.

Zimbabwe did claim bronze with a routine 3-0 victory over Botswana in the third-place play-off.

The final between South Africa and Zambia was a tight affair, but a goal after 22 minutes from Tiisetso Makhubela sealed victory for the home side and a hat-trick of titles for coach Des Ellis. ●

TEAMS

THE TEAMS

ANGOLA

Best finish: Runners-up (2008)FIFA Ranking: 121CAF Ranking: 18

Angola will be making a return to the COSAFA Women's Championship for the second year running in 2020 as they take their place among the 10 teams who will compete in Nelson Mandela Bay from November 3-14.

The Angolans had taken a hiatus from the competition before their showing in 2019, and have appeared in three of the seven previous finals overall. It shows the emphasis that is being put back on the women's game in the country, after they failed to enter the qualifiers for the 2015 and 2019 FIFA Women's World Cups.

They have also not played in the continental qualifiers since attempting to reach the 2010 African Women's Championship, though they had entered the 2020 preliminaries that were cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Angola had been scheduled to meet Congo-Brazzaville over two legs in the first round.

They have twice before been to the African Women's Championship. In 1995 they reached the semifinals but lost 6-4 on aggregate to South Africa.

They appeared again in 2002 but drew two and lost one of their three first round matches and finished third in their pool. Their first appearance at the COSAFA Women's Championship finals was in 2006 when they lost to Zimbabwe in a first round tie that ended up being played over two legs.

It was initially a three-team group, but when Mozambique withdrew, Angola and Zimbabwe played two games against one-another, that were won 3-1 and 1-0 by the Mighty Warriors.

They featured again in 2011, this time as hosts, and made it all the way through to the final against what was essentially an Under-20 selection from South Africa after a clash of fixtures for the senior national team.

Angola returned for the 2019 championship, but found the going tough, winning just one of their three pool matches. They opened the tournament with a 4-1 loss to Zimbabwe, and that was followed by a 4-0 defeat to Eswatini.

They managed to gain some pride back with a 3-1 victory over rivals Mozambique in their final pool game to finish third in Group C.

The South Africans still proved too powerful though as they claimed a 3-1 final win in a competition where then striker, and now centre-back, Noko Matlou netted 12 goals.

In July, Artur de Almeida e Silva, president of the Angolan Football Federation, was appointed to coordinate the COSAFA Women's Football Committee.

Angola are currently ranked number 121 in the world and 18 in Africa.

BOTSWANA

Best finish: Fourth (2019)FIFA Ranking: 148CAF Ranking: 27

Botswana will be seeking to build on their maiden appearance in the knockout stages of the COSAFA Women's Championship last year.

They made it through to the last four, but lost 4-0 to eventual runners-up Zambia. They went through the pool stages unbeaten though, defeating Namibia (1-0) and Mauritius (3-0), before playing to a 0-0 draw with Zambia.

They also lost the bronze-medal match, going down 3-0 to Zimbabwe.

But it is a vast improvement on past showings. The Lady Zebras did in fact now win a match in their opening three visits to the finals in 2002, 2008 and 2011.

They broke that duck in 2017 with a 3-0 success over Lesotho.

They also managed draw against eventual champions South Africa, but it was not enough to advance from their pool as they finished second.

In 2018 they opened with a 2-0 win over Malawi, lost 1-0 to South Africa and drew 0-0 with Madagascar to finish runners-up in their pool.

Their very first match in the regional showpiece competition in 2002 ended in a 14-0 loss to South Africa.

That opening defeat was in fact the very first fixture of the national team, who are now celebrating 16 years of playing at international level.

The country has not yet qualified for a major championship, having entered the preliminaries for the last three FIFA Women's World Cup finals, and for the African Women's Championship since 2008.

COMOROS ISLANDS

Best finish: Group Stages (2019)

FIFA Ranking: 156

CAF Ranking: 30

Comoros Islands will return to the COSAFA Women's Championship for the second time in a row after a difficult debut in 2019 from which many lessons will have been learnt.

Comoros were placed in a tough group and lost all three games, going down 17-0 to hosts South Africa in their opener.

That is a record score in the competition as the eventual winners used their greater experience and physicality to ensure they claimed a big win.

Comoros also went down 5-1 to Madagascar and 13-0 to Malawi in their other pool games. It means Wafat Mari is their only scorer in COSAFA Women's Championship matches to date.

Growth in the women's game has been slow in the country, but is picking up pace and they will be keen to showcase their quality in the regional championship.

The country entered the preliminary competition for the 2015 FIFA Women's World Cup, their first appearance, but after a 13-0 loss to powerhouse South Africa in the first leg of their qualifier, did not fulfil the return fixture.

They then did not enter the preliminaries for the 2019 World Cup, and have also not entered the qualifiers for the African Women's Championship.

ESWATINI

Best finish: Group Stages (2002, 2006, 2017, 2018, 2019)

FIFA Ranking: 151

CAF Ranking: 28

Eswatini featured in the early days of the COSAFA Women's Championships and after a brief hiatus have now returned to play in the last three instalments of the regional showpiece competition.

They are awaiting their first qualification for the knockout stages, but will hope to make steady progress towards that and could perhaps spring a surprise this year.

Eswatini claimed a 3-0 win over Botswana in their second match in 2002, their first win on their maiden appearance, but also lost out to Mozambique (0-2) and South Africa (0-4) to end third in their pool.

They were back at the finals in 2006, but this time lost to Namibia (0-6) and Zambia (0-7) in what was a difficult campaign.

The country skipped the 2011 tournament but returned for the 2017 finals in Zimbabwe, where a 3-0 win over Mauritius was followed by a 2-2 draw with Mozambique. They were denied a first ever place in the semifinals though after a 1-0 loss to East Africa guest nation Kenya.

The following year proved a harsher experience as they lost all three games, going down to East African guests Uganda (4-3), Zimbabwe (3-0) and Namibia (4-1) to finish bottom of the pool.

The side were much improved in 2019 as they won two of their three games, but still narrowly missed out on the semifinals.

A 3-1 victory over Mozambique was followed by a thumping 4-0 success over Angola. But they came unstuck against Zimbabwe, going down 7-0 in their final pool match to bow out.

The team entered the qualifiers for the 2018 African Women's Championship, which also served as the preliminaries for the 2019 FIFA Women's World Cup, but went down 3-1 on aggregate to Lesotho in the first round.

LESOTHO

Best finish: Group Stages (2002, 2006, 2008, 2011, 2017, 2018)

FIFA Ranking: 147

CAF Ranking: 26

Lesotho have been regular competitors at the COSAFA Women's Championships since the first tournament played in 2002, though they did not take part in 2019.

They did not get off to the best of starts with a 15-0 defeat in their opener to hosts Zimbabwe, which was followed by a 3-0 defeat to Malawi and a 3-1 loss to Zambia.

It did not get much better in 2006 as they lost 9-0 to South Africa and 3-0 to Malawi in a three-team group.

They were close to semifinal qualification in 2011 when they beat Mozambique 3-2 but lost to Malawi in their play-off decider.

In 2017 they claimed a fine 2-1 win over Namibia in pool play, but lost to South Africa and Botswana, both by 3-0 scorelines.

They returned in 2018, but lost all three matches, going down to Zambia (2-0), Mozambique (2-1) and Central African guest nation Cameroon (6-0) to finish bottom of their pool.

The national team is currently positioned at number 137 in the FIFA Women's World Rankings.

They played their first international in 1998 away in Mozambique and lost 3-0, and have yet to qualify for the African Women's Championship.

Their most recent attempt to make the finals was in 2018 when they defeated Eswatini 3-1 on aggregate in the first round of qualifying, but then lost 7-0 on aggregate to South Africa in the next stage.

MALAWI

Best finish: Fourth (2011)

FIFA Ranking: 145

CAF Ranking: 24

Malawi played their first ever international at the 2002 COSAFA Women's Championships, but were on the receiving end of an 8-0 loss to hosts Zambia at that tournament.

They beat Lesotho 3-0 in their next game to record a first win, but failed to reach the knockout stages.

They defeated Lesotho by the same scoreline at the 2006 COSAFA Women's Championships, but a 3-0 loss to South Africa ended their semifinal hopes.

Malawi did reach the knockout stages when the tournament was played in 2011, finishing second in their pool, but came unstuck against the South Africans again with a 5-1 semifinal loss.

They eventually finished fourth after losing 3-0 to East African guest nation Tanzania in the bronze medal play-off match.

The side had a mixed competition in 2017, losing to Zambia (6-3), drawing with Zimbabwe (3-3) and claiming a handsome win over Madagascar (6-3) to finish third in the pool with four points.

It was also mixed success in 2018, with a 2-0 win over Madagascar tempered by a loss to Botswana by the same scoreline and a 6-0 hammering from South Africa.

The side continued to show their progress with another strong performance in 2019, but once again they could not sneak into the knockout stages.

They started with a 2-0 win over Madagascar, but that was followed by a 3-1 loss to South Africa.

They finished their pool play with a team record 13-0 success against the Comoros Islands.

Malawi have yet to qualify for the African Women's Championship.

SOUTH AFRICA

Best finish: Winners (2002, 2006,

2008, 2017, 2018, 2019)

FIFA Ranking: 53

CAF Ranking: 3

South Africa are six-time winners of the COSAFA Women's Championship and will be the defending champions again after claiming the last three tournaments held.

The side are also still basking from the achievement of qualifying for a first ever FIFA Women's World Cup in 2019 as the game in the country continues to make steady strides and break new boundaries

They stormed to the inaugural 2002 regional title, beating Zimbabwe 2-1 in the final as they won all five of their games, scoring 36 goals in the process. That included huge victories over Botswana (14-0) and Mozambique (13-0) in the pool stages.

It was more of the same in 2006 as they won both group stages games against Lesotho (9-0) and Malawi (3-0), before a 4-1 victory over Zimbabwe in the semifinals. They beat Namibia 3-1 in the final to pick up gold.

A clash of fixtures meant they sent an Under-20 side to the 2008 championships, but still won all of their games, including a 3-1 victory over hosts Angola in the final.

But their run was ended by hosts Zimbabwe in the decider in 2011, leaving them with a record of 26 wins from 29 games in the COSAFA Women's Championships at that point.

They regained their title in 2017 as wins over Lesotho (3-0) and Namibia (3-1) saw them into the knockout stages, where they came from 3-0 down with 13 minutes remaining to draw 3-3 with Zambia and win on penalties. That set up a final with Zimbabwe, where South Africa ran out 2-1 winners.

They had to do it the hard way again in 2018 as wins over Madagascar (2-1), Botswana (1-0) and Malawi (6-0) in the pool stages were followed by a 2-0 success over East African guest nation Uganda in the semifinals and a 2-1 victory over Central African guests Cameroon in the decider.

A much-changed side took part in 2019 but still snatched the trophy as a tournament record 17-0 win over Comoros Islands was followed by further pool wins over Malawi (3-1) and Madagascar (3-0).

They defeated old enemy Zimbabwe 3-1 in the semifinals, before edging Zambia 1-0 in the decider.

South Africa have competed at every African Women's Championship since 1995, but despite five runners-up finishers, have yet to claim the gold medal. In 2018 they lost the final on penalties to nemesis Nigeria.

TANZANIA

Best finish: Third (2011)

FIFA Ranking: 139

CAF Ranking: 21

East African guest nation Tanzania first appeared in the COSAFA Women's Championship in 2011 and made a strong impression, walking away with the bronze medal.

They managed pool stage wins over Botswana (3-1) and Zambia (2-0), but lost to South Africa (1-0) to finish runners-up.

That set up a semifinal with hosts Zimbabwe, where they lost on penalties after a 0-0 draw. They made up for that disappointment with a 3-0 success over Malawi in the third-place play-off.

They will appear again this year and hope to emulate the Tanzania side that claimed the COSAFA Women's Under-20 Championships at the same Nelson Mandela Bay venue last year.

Tanzania qualified for their only African Women's Championship finals in 2010, when the finals were hosted in South Africa.

They lost all three pool stage games though, going down to the hosts (2-1), Mali (3-2) and Nigeria (3-0).

ZAMBIA

Best finish: Runners-up (2019)

FIFA Ranking: 100

CAF Ranking: 12

Zambia have enjoyed a recent return to form having qualified for the 2014 and 2018 African Women's Championships and showed that improvement at last year's COSAFA Women's Championships when they finished as runners-up to hosts South Africa.

They will see the silver medal as progression, with the Shepolopolo having three times before been bronze medallists in the regional showpiece competition. Lifting the trophy will be a genuine aim of theirs in 2020.

They played in the inaugural competition in 2002 when wins over Malawi (8-0) and Lesotho (3-1) saw them into the semifinals, where they lost 3-1 to South Africa. They beat Mozambique 1-0 to take the bronze medal.

The side topped their pool in 2006 as they drew 2-2 with Namibia and beat Eswatini 7-0, but this time were edged in a penalty shoot-out in the semifinals by the Namibians after a 1-1 draw. They beat old foes Zimbabwe 2-1 to take the bronze again.

The side could not replicate that in 2008 and in 2011 were surprisingly ousted in the pool stages.

They did reach the semifinals in 2017, topping a pool that also included Malawi (6-3), Zimbabwe (1-1) and Madagascar (7-1), but let a 3-0 leading slip against South Africa in the final 13 minutes to lose on penalties.

They then beat East African guest nation Kenya via spot-kicks after a 1-1 draw to seal the bronze medal.

Zambia again breezed through the pool stages in 2018, but came unstuck with a 1-0 loss to Central African guest nation Cameroon in the semifinals, before a loss by the same scoreline to East African guest nation Uganda in the bronze-medal match.

They claimed a team record 15-0 win over Mauritius in their 2019 pool opener, before a 3-2 success over Namibia and 0-0 draw with Botswana ensured they top the pool.

Zambia went on to beat Botswana 4-0 in the semifinals, but were narrow 1-0 losers to South Africa in the decider.

The team have twice appeared at the continental finals, but won just one of their six matches, against Equatorial Guinea (5-0) in 2018.

ZIMBABWE

Best finish: Winners (2011)

FIFA Ranking: 111

CAF Ranking: 15

Women's football in Zimbabwe saw a resurgence a decade ago after the side won the Southern African championship in 2011 and also qualified for the Olympic Games football tournament in Brazil in 2016.

Zimbabwe have always been a competitive side and finally broke their duck in the competition with victory in 2011, which ended South Africa's fine run of success in the tournament.

They reached the final in the inaugural competition in 2002, but lost to South Africa 2-1 in the decider in Harare. They had stormed into the decider with four straight wins in which they scored a staggering 36 goals, including a then competition record 15-0 victory over Lesotho in their opener.

They finished top of their pool again in 2006 after two matches against their only pool opponent, Angola, but came unstuck in the semifinals this time with a 4-1 loss to South Africa. They were beaten to third place by Zambia when they went down 2-1 in the bronze medal match.

The 2008 championship in Angola provided little joy, but they finally lifted the trophy in 2011 on home soil when they proved a dominant force again and beat South Africa 1-0 in the final.

They could not quite repeat that feat in Bulawayo in 2017 as they took the best runner-up spot in their pool with victory over Madagascar (4-0), and draws with Zambia (1-1) and Malawi (3-3), before walloping East African guest nation Kenya 4-0 in the semifinals.

That set up a final against old foes South Africa, but Zimbabwe finished on the losing side by a 2-1 scoreline.

In 2018 the side failed to make it out of their pool despite two wins over Eswatini (3-0) and Namibia (1-0), their fate sealed by a 2-1 loss to East African guest nation Uganda.

They raced through the pool stages in 2019 with wins over Angola (4-1), Mozambique (4-0) and Eswatini (7-0), but South Africa once again proved their nemesis in the semifinals as Zimbabwe lost 3-1.

They did claim the bronze medal though with a 3-0 success over Botswana in the third-place play-off.

Zimbabwe's best finish at the African Women's Championships was fourth in 2000. They have been to four continental finals in all, but did not make it out the pool stages in 2002, 2004 and 2016. ●

This will be the fourth year in a row that the COSAFA Women's Championship has been held after a brief hiatus, with South Africa defending the crown once again after a hat-trick of titles in previous years.

THE 2020 COSAFA WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP IN NUMBERS

1 – ZAMBIA MADE THEIR MAIDEN APPEARANCE in the COSAFA Women's Championship final in 2019, but lost 1-0 to hosts South Africa. Previously they had finished third at the tournament on three occasions (2002, 2006, 2017).

2 – Namibia (2006) and Angola (2008) have BOTH APPEARED IN THE FINAL of the COSAFA Women's Championship before but have yet to lift the trophy.

2 – The number of NATIONS WHO HAVE WON THE AFRICAN WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP. Nigeria have 11 titles and Equatorial Guinea two. Nigeria edged South Africa again in 2018 when they defeated Banyana Banyana on penalties following a 0-0 draw in the final. The 2020 finals were cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

2 – The NUMBER OF VENUES that will be used for the 2019 COSAFA Women's Championship in Port Elizabeth – the 10,000-seater Wolfson Stadium and the more intimate Gelvandale Stadium.

2 – TWO COSAFA NATIONS QUALIFIED FOR THE 2018 AFRICAN WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP in Ghana, namely South Africa and Zambia. South Africa have been runners-up on five previous occasions, while Zambia's best finish in their three previous visits to the finals was the quarterfinals in 1995.

3 – SOUTH AFRICA WILL BE HOSTING THE COSAFA WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP FOR THE THIRD TIME.

Zimbabwe (2002, 2011, 2017) have hosted on three previous occasions, with Zambia (2006) and Angola (2008) staging the event once each.

Africa (12 times), Zimbabwe (four), Zambia (three), Angola (two), Namibia and Mozambique. Associate member Reunion also made an appearance in 2000.

8 – This year's COSAFA Women's Championship will be the EIGHTH TIME the regional showpiece competition has been held.

12 – South African striker Noko Matlou BANGED IN 12 GOALS in the 2008 COSAFA Women's Championship, which helped her lift the CAF Women's Footballer of the Year prize that season. She is still part of the team but is now a central defender.

31 – The number of GOALS SCORED BY SOUTH AFRICA in their three COSAFA Women's Championship Group B matches in 2002. They beat Botswana (14-0), Mozambique (13-0) and Swaziland (4-0) on their way to the title. It is the most ever scored in the pool stages.

53 – South Africa are the TOP-RANKED SIDE in the COSAFA region according to the FIFA Women's World Rankings at number 53. They are the third best team in Africa according to the list after Nigeria and Cameroon.

117 – The number of GOALS SCORED IN 22 MATCHES at the 2019 COSAFA Women's Championship, a healthy average of over five per game!

159 – The NUMBER OF NATIONAL TEAMS on the FIFA Women's World Rankings. A total of 32 of those are from Africa. ●

17 The NUMBER OF GOALS SCORED by South Africa when they defeated Comoros 17-0 in their Group A clash in 2019. It is the biggest win in COSAFA Women's Championship history.

3 – South Africa coach Des Ellis has lifted the COSAFA Women's Championship trophy ON THREE OCCASIONS (2017-19), making her the most successful coach in the competition's history.

6 – South Africa have won the COSAFA Women's Championship ON SIX PREVIOUS OCCASIONS – 2002, 2006, 2008, 2017, 2018 and 2019. They also made the final in 2011 but lost to hosts Zimbabwe.

6 – The number of COSAFA COUNTRIES THAT HAVE COMPETED at the African Women's Championship in the past – South

10 – Zimbabwean hot-shot RUTENDO MAKORE WAS TOP-SCORER at the 2017 COSAFA Women's Championship with 10 goals but could not fire her side to a final win. It was a similar story for Zambia's Racheal Nachula, who also netted 10 times in 2019, but finished with a silver medal.

10 – The NUMBER OF TEAMS that will compete at the COSAFA Women's Championship in Nelson Mandela Bay, namely Angola, Botswana, Comoros Islands, Eswatini, Lesotho, Malawi, South Africa, East African guest nation Tanzania, Zambia and Zimbabwe.

IN SEARCH OF FOUR IN A ROW

South Africa coach DESIREE ELLIS completed a hat-trick of COSAFA Women's Championship trophy wins in 2019, just a few months after she had led the side at the FIFA Women's World Cup in France. The two-time CAF Women's Coach of the Year is as hungry as ever for success but has a much-changed squad in Nelson Mandela Bay this time round.

You have been drawn alongside Comoros, Angola and Eswatini in your pool at the COSAFA Women's Championships. Your thoughts on those teams?

We played the Comoros last year [won 17-0] and I am sure they would have improved. Angola was also in the tournament last year. Eswatini was in the same group with Angola, but you cannot take any team lightly. You do so at your peril. We have a young group of players and the opportunity now to expose them to international competition and we want to make sure we plan properly. Then it is up to the players to execute properly. The first game of the tournament is always the most important and we are working towards that.

You do have a number of changes to your squad, what was your thinking behind the selections?

We have always used the COSAFA

Women's Championship as a chance to give new and young players an opportunity to see if they can rise to the occasion, play in international competition and give them the experience ... we always say if you want to conquer Africa you first have to conquer your own region. So we are using a number of players from the Under-20 team, and we have also recalled Gabriela Salgado who played in 2018. We also have some new caps, such as [defenders] Karabo Makhurubetshi from Mamelodi Sundowns and Xiluva Tshabalala, who we saw at the SASOL championships. But we also have players who went to the World Cup, such as our captain [goalkeeper] Andile Dlamini, and [defenders] Kaylyn Jordaan and Bongeka Gamede. Then there is the evergreen Mamello [Makhabane], who is the vice-captain of the team and Robyn Moodaly. We have a young group with a little bit of a mix of experience. Nine of the players that played at last year's COSAFA Women's Championship are now playing abroad, so we almost have a new squad for this year's COSAFA.

A number of the coaches have expressed concerns over fitness with the players having spent so much time on the sidelines. Do you share these?

We had sent out programmes for quite a while, but it is easier said than done when you are training alone and have limited space. The only time we could really assess the players was when they came together as a group. At the start, getting match fitness is always a challenge, but as time has gone on, we have put some extra work in and it is looking better. But all the teams are in the same position, there are some countries that have started preparing sooner than others, we could not due to lockdown regulations. We will just try to utilise the squad completely to keep the players as fresh as possible and to last the whole tournament. Having the players as fresh as possible for every game will be key for us. Everybody is looking forward to the tournament, but we don't know what is in store for us. It is the first [women's international] tournament back in Africa. We will be as prepared as we can, you just have to manage the players properly.

You played a training game in the build-up against the Under-17 side who will compete concurrently in the COSAFA Women's Under-17 Championship ...

It was very encouraging, I had seen the Under-17s before lockdown. I attended quite a few of their training sessions. As senior team coaches we are always communicating with the Under-17 and Under-20 coaches, especially when we are assessing players out of their group like we are now. We all know they also have to play qualifiers, and we want to make sure we get the right players that the Under-20 coach [Simphiwe Dlodlu] feels need to get some game-time

[at senior level]. The synergy we have between the teams is amazing. We try to help each other, we would have liked to have played friendlies against other teams or boys' teams, but it wasn't possible. We were in camp together, so we decided it was a good idea to play the game. They [Under-17s] are well structured and organised, and they gave us a test, which was what we wanted.

Is it a blow not to have your overseas-based players with you now?

We have always used the COSAFA Cup for mostly local players, the only time we had overseas-based players was in 2018 when the league in the United States had finished and Janine [Van Wyk], Linda [Motlhalo] and Thembi [Kgatlana] came. But having said that, if any other players that play abroad were in the country at this moment they would have been part of the squad. We have 13 players overseas from our most recent squads, and we do always have to look at bringing in newer players. It 2017 we had 10 new players at the competition. We have always used this championship to have a look at new players, you want to have a big core group, so when at times like now when players aren't available, you know what you have. It is always good to refresh the squad. Some of the players coming through the system understand what we are doing, it is key we keep on bringing in new players.

Has the standard of the COSAFA Women's Championship improved since your first tournament as head coach in 2017?

Most definitely, you look at Zambia for example, playing against a continental giant like Cameroon and winning both legs to qualify for the [2020] Olympics. We were at the 2016 Olympics along with Zimbabwe. It is with the help of COSAFA, because let us not forget this competition has helped us a lot to prepare. Just before the 2018 Afcon we had Cameroon here [at the COSAFA Women's Championship] and it was a big test for us to see where we were at. Now that COSAFA is also hosting youth tournaments it is helping them a lot too in those age-groups. But I think this has really made the Southern African teams to get prepared. Look at Madagascar, look at Malawi, they have come on leaps and bounds. The fact the competitions are annual really raises the level of the competition. COSAFA has been a tremendous help, not just with the senior championships, but also the Champions League that will be played in the region among clubs. We cannot thank COSAFA enough for that. ●

NEW TROPHY FOR A NEW ERA OF WOMEN'S FOOTBALL!

THE PEOPLE HAVE SPOKEN!

We asked the more than 50,000 fans across our social media platforms to vote on what the new COSAFA Women's Championship trophy should look like.

We presented three options on Twitter, Facebook and Instagram, and asked fans to choose which one they believed we should present to the winners of this year's tournament.

The overwhelming majority voted for the trophy seen here, with 67% of you in favour of it, a fresh new design for a new era of growth in women's football.

We want to thank all who took part in the vote, this is truly a trophy for you!

A new piece of silverware was needed after South Africa claimed the previous one for the third time in a row, claiming victories between 2017 and 2019, which meant they got to keep the old trophy at SAFA House.

TEAMS AT THE COSAFU WOMEN'S UNDER-17 CHAMPIONSHIP

The 2020 COSAFU Women's Under-17 Championship will see a reduced field of six teams take part in the tournament due to difficulties around the COVID-19 pandemic. Here is a quick rundown of each side and their past history in qualifying for FIFA Women's Under-17 World Cup.

COMOROS ISLANDS

Finish in 2019: Seventh

Record in 2019:

P3 W0 D0 L3 GF1 GA40

Comoros have been rare participants at this age-group level in women's football and have yet to enter the African qualifiers for the FIFA Women's Under-17 World Cup.

That could change though as they move into a new era of competition, which started with a first ever visit to the COSAFU Women's Under-17 Championship in 2019.

It is fair to say there will have been plenty of lessons learnt after three tough matches for the side.

They started with a 5-1 loss to fellow islanders Mauritius, before going down 15-0 to powerful Zambia. They were followed by a 20-0 defeat at the hands of eventual winners Uganda.

Moinahedji Ali is the scorer of their only goal in the competition so far.

SOUTH AFRICA

Finish in 2019: Second

Record in 2019:

P5 W4 D0 L1 GF39 GA5

South Africa are the most successful of the COSAFA nations in this age-group having twice before qualified for the FIFA Women's Under-17 World Cup in 2010 and 2018.

They also reached the final of last year's COSAFA Women's Under-17 Championship, but were undone by the excellent Uganda, who proved too good in a 2-1 success in the decider.

There was much to admire about South Africa along the way though, they claimed an African international record 28-0 scoreline in their opener against Seychelles.

That was followed by pool stage wins over Botswana (5-1) and Madagascar (3-1) as they claimed a 100% record.

They edged Zambia 2-1 in a tough semifinal, but finally came unstuck against the Ugandans.

They are also still in with a chance of winning a place at the 2021 FIFA Women's World Cup in India, where they will face Morocco in the final round of qualifying.

After a bye in the first round, they edged Zambia 3-2 on aggregate to advance to the third stage. Zambia won the first leg 2-0 at home, but South Africa roared back to claim the second 3-0.

Their first shot at the global finals came in 2008 when they lost 3-0 on aggregate to Cameroon in the second round after having a walkover win over Botswana in the first.

They humbled Botswana 22-1 over two legs in the 2010 qualifiers, but then lost 7-1 on aggregate to Nigeria to miss out on an automatic place at the finals.

They went into a play-off with Tunisia though and after a 1-0 away win and 1-1 draw, booked a place in Trinidad & Tobago.

There they found the going tough, with defeats to South Korea (1-3), Germany (1-10) and Mexico (0-4), but a number of that squad, including Robyn Moodaly, Jermaine Seoposenwe and Kaylin Swart have gone on to have successful careers.

South Africa beat Namibia 6-1 on aggregate in the qualifiers for 2012, but a 5-1 aggregate loss to Ghana in the next stage meant there would be no finals for them.

A year later they were surprisingly defeated by Zambia in the second round after a 3-3 away draw was followed by a 3-1 home loss.

In 2015 they received a walkover win over Zambia, but in the final stage of qualifying lost 7-0 on aggregate to Nigeria.

They were back at the global finals in 2018 though as a 11-6 aggregate win over Botswana was followed by a 6-1 aggregate success over Morocco.

They meant they played at the FIFA event in Uruguay, where they again showed improved performance, but could not get out of their pool.

A 0-0 draw with Mexico was followed by a 6-0 loss to Japan and a 4-1 defeat to Brazil.

TANZANIA

Finish in 2019: -

Record in 2019: -

Tanzania will be welcome guests at both the COSAFA Women's Senior Championship and the COSAFA Women's Under-17 Championship that will be held concurrently in Nelson Mandela Bay next month.

It is a chance for Tanzania to hold all three COSAFA women's trophies at the same time, after their Under-20 side triumphed in that age group in the tournament that was also staged at the same venue in 2019.

On that occasion that beat Zambia 2-1 in the final and will have given plenty of hope to the senior side and Under-17 girls that they can follow suit.

The squad has been in camp in Dar es Salaam under the watchful eye of coach Bakari Shime, where they have been working hard in preparation for the tournament.

Shime will be keen to make up for the disappointment of the side's exit from the 2020 African Under-17 Women's World Cup qualifying competition in March, when they went down 6-2 on aggregate to the powerful Ugandan side.

The Ugandans are the reigning COSAFA Women's Under-17 Championship holders after their win in Mauritius last year, but lost the first leg to the Tanzanians 2-1, which shows the quality of Shime's side.

They could not hold their hosts in the return leg though as Uganda ran out 5-0 winners.

Tanzania had defeated Burundi 6-1 on aggregate in the round before, with ever-dangerous Aisha Masaka grabbing a hat-trick in the first leg.

She also got both goals against Uganda and will be a real threat in Nelson Mandela Bay. Other stars of the side include Protasia Mbunda and Joyce Meshack.

It was the first time Tanzania had entered the World Cup qualifiers and having shown plenty of promise, will be eager to build on that performance.

TEAMS

ZAMBIA

Finish in 2019: Third

Record in 2019:

P5 W3 D1 L1 GF28 GA3

Zambia are the only other nation from the region after South Africa to appear at the FIFA Women's Under-17 World Cup after they contested the 2014 finals in Costa Rica.

They will dream of a return again, and will look to the COSAFA Women's Under-17 Championship to lay the platform for building a squad towards that.

They managed to earn the bronze medal last time out as they showed plenty of guts to earn a point in their pool opener against eventual winners Uganda that finished 1-1.

That was followed by big wins over Comoros Islands (15-0) and Mauritius (8-0) to earn a place in the semifinals.

There they came up against hosts and od nemesis South Africa, but lost 2-1, before going on to claim a 3-0 success against Botswana in the third-place play-off.

Zambia first entered the running for World Cup qualification in 2008, but lost 6-0 on aggregate to Ghana in the preliminary round, and then skipped the 2010 qualifiers.

Zambia defeated Botswana 7-1 in the 2012 qualifiers, but then lost by the same margin on aggregate to Nigeria in the next stage.

They beat Botswana again 8-3 on aggregate in the first stage ahead of the 2014 finals, and were surprise 6-4 aggregate winners over South Africa following a 3-3 home draw and a 3-1 away win.

They sealed their place in Costa Rica, where they put in a decent showing. They lost their first two games to Italy (0-2) and Venezuela (0-4), but did beat the hosts 2-1 in their last match.

Zambia withdrew from the 2016 qualifiers ahead of their tie with South Africa, and then were surprise 6-5 aggregate losers to Botswana despite leading 5-2 from the first leg.

They had a walkover against Namibia in the latest round of qualifying, but then lost 3-2 on aggregate to South Africa despite winning the first leg 2-0 at home.

ZIMBABWE

Finish in 2019: -

Record in 2019: -

Zimbabwe will make their debut at the COSAFA Women's Under-17 Championship after missing out on the inaugural year.

The team are coming off as tough 7-0 aggregate loss to Botswana in the qualifiers for the 2021 FIFA Women's World Cup, with a first leg 5-0 loss away followed by a 2-0 home defeat.

They also initially entered the 2008 qualifiers but withdrew before their tie against DR Congo.

Zimbabwe skipped the next five set of qualifiers, before making a return for the latest batch ahead of 2021 and will now look to grow their team in this age-group.

Competing in Nelson Mandela Bay will certainly go a long way towards helping them do that. ●
